COLLECTIONS OF HARDY BULBS.

The following Bulbs, comprising the finest varieties, separate, may be planted from September to November, or even later, if not convenient before. In cold, damp situations it is better to defer planting Anemones and Ranunculus till March. Those planted in the Autumn flower stronger if the Spring prove very dry. Those designated with a * are also proper for pots.

J. Carter requests to be informed whether double or single Hyacinths are preferred, or part of each. If the selection is left to him, he sends two-thirds double and one-third single. He recommends Hyacinths in pairs, as they may then be arranged symmetrically, which adds much to the effect.

GREENHOUSE BULBS.

Those designated with a * are also proper for a frame or the open borders, but they require a little protection in winter. Of the smaller Bulbs marked *, and particularly of such as are not expensive, J. C. would recommend at least three Bulbs of a kind, for a pot or stump, as a single Bulb is not sufficient for effect. Those with  are proper for a stove or greenhouse, but the former is preferable. Those marked thus † are now called Hippeastrum, as Amaryllis arctica, or Hippeastrum aulicum. The new Bulbs may be known by the names of the authorities affixed, as Babiana fragrans (Ecklon). See also Beilia, Freuchenia, 2 Gladiolus, Hebia, Hessea, 2 Lachenalia, Micranthus, 2 Oxalis, Ovieda, 2 Strumaria, and those marked Cape species.

FLOWER SEEDS FOR AUTUMN SOWING.

Hardy Annuals, including the Californian, as Nemophila, Clarkia, Collinsia, &c., should be sown the latter end of September, for early flowering next Spring. Half-hardy Annuals, as Stocks, and Half-hardy Perennials, which require protection in Winter, should be sown from the middle of August to the middle of September, but the earlier the better. Hardy Perennials the same, particularly Carnation, Picotee and Hollyhock. In consequence of the unfavourable Springs of late years, Autumn-sowing cannot be too much recommended. Part of the Seeds can be reserved till Spring. As regards Perennials and most of the Greenhouse Seeds, a whole season is thereby saved. All the Flower Seeds sent postage free.
